Fund review

The US Dollar Currency Fund of Funds aims to maintain capital value and liquidity while producing a return for investors in line with money market rates. The STANLIB US dollar Fund, managed by J.P. Morgan Asset Management, uses high quality short-term Debt Securities, deposits with credit institutions and Reverse Repurchase Agreements to enhance returns. Investments will have a credit quality consistent with maintaining a Fitch Fund rating of AAA and a rating of AAA by Standard & Poor's for the fund. The fund returned 5.28% for the quarter vs the benchmark return of 4.97%.

Market overview

In March, FOMC decision saw the Federal Reserve keep rates on hold for the fifth consecutive meeting, as universally expected. The Federal funds target rate range therefore remains unchanged at 5.25 - 5.50%. The decision was unanimous. The FOMC statement was also near identical to January's, other than a small adjustment to its assessment of the labour market, omitting a reference to job gains having moderated and instead noting that gains remained strong. However, markets' real interest lay with the Fed's updated projections and any nuances on the timing of rate cuts from Chair Powell's press conference. In this regard markets took comfort from the fact that the 'dot plot' continued to show a median view of 75bps of interest rate cuts this year.

Whilst neither the FOMC statement nor Chair Powell gave much away in terms of the likely timing of the first rate cut, the median view of FOMC participants continued to be for three cuts this year, with the Fed funds target rate range expected to end this year at 4.50 - 4.75%. GDP in 2024 was revised up to 2.1% from 1.4%, whilst 2025 and 2026 were pushed up to 2% in both years. Inflation meanwhile saw minor upward revisions too; headline PCE was unchanged in 2024 at 2.4% whilst 2025 was pushed up to 2.2% in 2025, whilst core was nudged up to 2.6% this year and unchanged thereafter at 2.2% and 2.0%. Although the median view for policy easing was unchanged for this year, there were some changes to the distribution of forecasts with only one member of the Fed expecting more than three cuts this year. By contrast in December there were five.

Looking ahead

The FOMC remains on course to reduce rates this year and as such believe that our baseline view of a 25bp cut in June and 75bps of easing across the year remains appropriate. Whilst we continue to judge the risk lies with a later move, we take some comfort from the dot plot and the fact that the firmer economic forecasts do not appear to have dislodged the FOMC's existing view over rate cuts in 2024.
